SECTION 1: PROJECT OVERVIEW AND PURPOSE OF THE VALIDITY TEST

The Validity Test V2 (“Test”) is a new web-based tool that will measure important literacy skills needed for work and life in Canada. These skills include Reading Text, Using Documents and Numeracy.

By completing the Test you are helping to provide valuable information (“Data”) used to ensure the Test is fair and accurate for all test takers. Your Data, along with the Data from hundreds of other participants in the Test, will be analyzed to make final versions of the Test (the “Purpose”). This process is called validation.

Each question in the Test represents typical tasks we encounter at work and in daily life. Each question evaluates a specific skill (reading, document use or numeracy) and some questions are more difficult than others.

The Test is also an opportunity to gather valuable feedback needed to improve the usability of the Test and system. All Test items represent generic work and daily life contexts.

Test items included in the Test have not been subjected to a formal psychometric review. The purpose of this validity test is to gather data on the items so that they can be reviewed. For this reason, it is not possible to produce valid, reliable score reports. Therefore, score reports will not be issued.

Your participation in the Test is voluntary. You may withdraw at any time. There are no known direct negative consequences for test taker participation. Your participation is important and we encourage you to complete the entire Test and provide feedback to the best of your ability.
